

TAKE THE PLEDGE

TO MAKE EVERY DAY GALENTINE'S DAY

I, _____, hereby swear to you, _____, to celebrate not only your achievements but your kindness and brilliance every day, to pick up the phone, to do more than text, to make the time even when I don't think it exists. I will send you the things that make me think of you, because I do think of you. I promise to bring cookies and make tea when you're up, or down, or somewhere else spinning around. I swear to sit quietly through your favourite show. I will lend you my nicest jumper, with only some hesitation. I promise to hold your hand, to raise you up, to cheer you on always. I will offer my sage and wise advice whenever I am asked, and never say I told you so when you don't listen – but know, I did tell you so. Then I will stand at your side, as fierce as a mother lion, against your enemies, your self-doubt and the nemesis you've had since you were 12. I promise to let you fall, let you feel, but I will never leave you to think you're alone. I will help you bury the bodies. I swear to never take our friendship for granted.
